BEIRUT – Prime Minister

Benjamin Netanyahu praised the operation by the Lebanese army and Hezbollah in which two Israeli soldiers were killed in a shootout in a northern Lebanese village. “I can say that I am very pleased with the result that was achieved today, in which we saw the destruction of one of the world’s most dangerous terror organizations that is entrenched in the heart of the region,” Netanyahu said. Hezbollah claimed the shootout was the result of an Israeli incursion. In an earlier statement, the IDF said the troops were involved in a "rare operational deployment" when they encountered a group of Hezbollah operatives. The incident in the village of Qaa was apparently the first time that an Israeli soldier has been shot and killed since the 2006

war in Lebanon. In the past the IDF's main concern has been that Hezbollah would try to turn the incident into a propaganda win. Foreign Minister Avigdor Lieberman is not expected to visit the Kfar Kila base, where the soldiers are deployed, before leaving on Sunday for Finland and Norway. He later added that Israel had conducted its operation with full awareness of the fact that Hezbollah was bound to retaliate.

“For this reason, it was important to thwart Hezbollah’s plan to use this incident to terrorize the residents of the northern Israeli communities,” he said. Lieberman said the IDF’s decision to conduct the operation in Qaa was justified. “Unlike in any other situation in which Hezbollah tries to drag Israel into one of its failed operations, there were clear signs indicating that in this case the IDF and the Lebanese army planned it without friction, and the IDF proved itself capable of withstanding Hezbollah's retaliatory potential." On Friday Netanyahu was quoted by the Walla news site as saying the IDF would not allow Hezbollah to drag Israel into the 2014 war in Gaza or into other regional conflicts. "The Israeli army made a decision and we will not allow Hezbollah to drag us into another war," he said. "We will draw a clear line and prevent Hezbollah from dragging us into another war.” The Lebanese army also deployed army units in the town of Kfar Kila on Friday. In a statement, Hezbollah said it was “a serious responsibility that requires an adequate response.” Hezbollah, who sent thousands of troops to join forces with the Shiite Amal Movement in the Palestinian camp of Nahr Al Bared, said they were deployed in the village of Qaa to maintain the

What's New in the?

Have you ever wondered what it's like to be a doctor while wearing a pair of hooped glasses? Answer: uncomfortable. Probably. As some of you may know, Emma J. Corbin is a fourth year student at the School of Medicine. She is involved in the neurosurgery residency program as a preclinical

(pre-program) fellow and communicates with neurosurgeons in the residency program to help ensure proper education for future medical students. On March 21st, she and the Women in Medicine group in the Society of Neurosurgeons Social Network collaborated to host a Facebook Live event with neurosurgeons to discuss how the neurosurgery field has changed to attract more women. “Women in Medicine

Mary Ulaeva. This is a collaborative effort to address an issue that affects us all as medical students, physicians and surgeons alike. Gender diversity in medical education will continue to improve as women become the majority of medical school graduates in the near future. So, are we satisfied with the current state of gender diversity in the neurosurgical workforce? How do we equip ourselves to better support women as they enter the field? We can all be better than we are right now, and this Facebook event will help make that happen. “I am a black woman and I am a neurosurgeon. I firmly believe in the power of medicine and the importance of providing optimal care to our patients, but that does not mean that I am immune to the challenges of being a woman in medicine.”
