Also known as PCClip, ClipX is a lightweight clipboard history manager that keeps a history of recently used entries in the clipboard and offers the usual features like adding and deleting entries, sorting entries, etc. ClipX is very easy to use. You can edit the recent history entries using the top level options menu. You can specify the number of entries to be displayed in a single window and the available menu items are Sort Entries By: Clipboard Time, Show Older Entries, Always Show Last Entry, Sort Entries by Length, Sort Entries by ID, Sort Entries by Date, Show Favorite Entries, etc. The below screenshot shows the history entries in the Window (as seen in the current video clip). PCClip is the software package I was using for a while that enabled me to have a clipboard history for a given folder and its subfolders. The advantage of using PCClip is that it keeps a history of the past files/folders that were copied to the clipboard. This is especially useful for example for people working with different applications. Many people use the Windows Clipboard as a quick way to carry over content from one application to another. This is very useful when you want to copy text from one application and paste it into another. It is also used for copying files and documents, etc. If you have never used the Clipboard in Windows, you probably have no idea that there is a history of past clips. However, for a lot of people, the Windows Clipboard is just a temporary storage of data that gets wiped out after a short amount of time. This happens because most people never use the Clipboard to actually copy data to and from the Clipboard. They rather copy and paste the Clipboard or they copy data from one application to another via the Edit Menu, which overwrites the Clipboard history. There are many programs out there that can help you to manage the Windows Clipboard. The main problem with these programs is that they are expensive and they are not worth the price. Therefore, I have decided to write a program that will help you to keep the Windows Clipboard history and it will help you to view the Clipboard history in the same order it was saved. First of all, the program I have written is free. You will be asked to register on our website and after that you will be able to use the program for free. There is no serial key or password.
