The available teams cover a broad spectrum of the gameplay mechanics players will experience in FIFA 22. QPR The Largest FIFA Tournament Ever European club play in FIFA 22 introduces the UEFA Champions League (UCL), which will run in parallel to the new Club World Cup, allowing more teams from more leagues to qualify and advance to the knockout rounds. Introducing the Official UEFA Champions League Squad Broadcasting Live in 4K - and Going Even Further than UCL 4K Ultra HD support was introduced in FIFA 17, but will also be available in FIFA 22. For the first time, FIFA will support 4K broadcasting live in-game and during replays. In FIFA 18, 4K was supported with certain video content, including pre- and post-match highlights, but this support was not available for broadcasting. FIFA Ultimate Team will benefit from 4K broadcasting as players will appear in high-resolution in a variety of environments and in impressive sharpness. This will also allow users to experience all the new and improved player models in stunning 4K detail. In FIFA 22, broadcasters can expect to see unprecedented quality and high-res content in the production of highlights. In addition, FIFA will deliver 4K and HDR content to multiple high-end devices, including 4K Ultra HD Blu-ray players and UHD streaming devices, on multiple platforms, including consoles, personal computers, mobile devices, and Apple TVs. New Real Player Motion Engine "We've completely redesigned the way the football AI operates," explained Ignacio Romera, Senior Producer, Simulation Technology at EA DICE.
