stress on the differentiation of PC-12 cells have been studied for decades, however, the exact mechanism of salt tolerance remains unclear. This study aimed to elucidate the role of protein expression in PC-12 cells under salt stress. The analysis of differentially expressed proteins in differentiated PC-12 cells exposed to 200mM NaCl for 2, 8, and 24h, respectively, was performed using a two-dimensional gel electrophoresis-based proteomic approach coupled with matrix-assisted laser desorption/ionization time-of-flight mass spectrometry. In the present study, 21 differentially expressed protein spots were identified, and 2-DE proteomic analysis showed the changes in protein expression in 2, 8, and 24h salt-treated cells. The proteins include nine binding proteins, six nucleic acid-binding proteins, four cytoskeleton-associated proteins, three enzyme modulators, and three unknown proteins. These findings revealed the mechanisms of PC-12 cell differentiation during salt stress and suggest the possible pathway of cellular defense against salt-induced stress.

Q: How to test an event listener in a browser-based workflow? I'm trying to learn how event listeners work in the context of a browser-based workflow. I am trying to test a listbox eventListener. The code I used to register the listener: `this.listBox1.addEventListener("click", function (e) { alert("Button 1 Clicked!"); });`; When I click the list box, the alert box never shows. Here is my test script (TestEventListener.js):

Element.prototype.addEventListener
