Q: How to go from SO to SO sites? After asking my first question here I wanted to go to other sites and after some time I noticed that I was not able to. How to go to sites like SO, CV, SF and others via SO? A: You first need to register on other sites. Asking a question after logging in to another site is expected. You should then be able to navigate to the other site through your network profile. Q: Why do I need to use 2 NSTimers (one for the UI)? I am not using 2 NSTimers, but I am doing some very simple code to make a random page when a UIButton is pressed. In other words, I only want one timer for the UI (the timer firing off the method when it's pressed) so I don't want to use the repeat option. However, I do want to be able to cancel the timer and call the method again at any point. I have two timers, both in the main queue, one for the UI and one for when the button is pressed. When I try to call the timer in the UI method, I get error: Terminating app due to uncaught exception 'NSInvalidArgumentException', reason: '-[__NSCFDate timeIntervalSinceReferenceDate]: unrecognized selector sent to instance 0xfe84e60' I am thinking this is because I am trying to use the UI's timer? Just to be clear: this is not a duplicate of the question asked here. Here is a simple description of what I am trying to do: I have a random image (from an array) at the top of the screen, which is put into a UIImageView. When the user clicks a UIButton, another image from the array will replace the top image. When the user clicks the button, I am giving it NSTimers so that I can set the timer to cancel itself once the button is pressed so the view will call the button's action again, and to reset the timer. I have two NSTimers, one that was set to fire a random image as needed, and one that will reset the timer and set the images (when pressed). I thought I could simply use something like this: UIButton *someButton = [UIButton

Perceived health status (PHS) and health-related quality of life (HRQoL) are associated with disease outcomes in patients with diabetes. The aim of the present study was to compare PHS and HRQoL and to assess the relationship between PHS and other HRQoL variables in a sample of people with type 1 diabetes in Brazil and Portugal. We used cross-sectional data from 404 Brazilian and Portuguese people with type 1 diabetes. Participants completed the Diabetes Quality of Life Measure (DQoL), the Diabetes Empowerment Scale (DES), a self-reported measure of perceived health status (PHS), and a questionnaire including demographic, clinical and psychosocial variables. Poisson and logistic regression analyses were used to explore the associations between PHS and HRQoL, and among other variables. Brazilian people scored significantly lower on all HRQoL dimensions compared with Portuguese people. Lower PHS was associated with less psychosocial empowerment and less HRQoL in both countries, but was unrelated to demographic variables and clinical variables. In both countries, PHS was significantly associated with less HRQo
