Alteration of the immunologic and non-immunologic ocular surface in subjects with Sjögren's syndrome. To determine the immunologic and non-immunologic alterations in the ocular surface in subjects with Sjögren's syndrome (SS). Fifty-six eyes of 56 subjects with biopsy-proven SS and 22 control eyes of 22 healthy volunteers underwent tear volume measurement, fluorescein staining, Schirmer tear test, impression cytology, test of tear exchange, and measurement of tear lactoferrin. Subjects with SS had significantly lower tear volume than controls, a higher incidence of abnormal fluorescein staining and a lower Schirmer test than controls. Interestingly, all subjects with SS had normal tear lactoferrin levels. Impression cytology revealed epithelial cell loss in 17 eyes of 16 subjects with SS and five control eyes. Tear exchange study showed impaired ocular surface integrity in subjects with SS. These data suggest that non-immunologic dysfunctions in the ocular surface may be implicated in the ocular surface alterations found in subjects with SS.
